Tirtwig

The

Lonely

Turtle

Author's Name

Takoda Matthew Webster Spears
Tirtwig was in his pond. Tirtwig was a lonely, lonely turtle. So, then Tirtwig called Ant. "Ant? Are you there?" said Tirtwig.

"I'm over here Tirtwig!" said Ant.

Ant was on an acorn.
Oh! There you are! said Tirtwig. "You scared me!" said Tirtwig.

"I'm like that everyday," said Ant.

So, Tirtwig and Ant went for a walk back to the pond. Then, they saw Porcupine.

"Hello," said Porcupine. "Hello," said Tirtwig and Ant. "Want to come with us?" they asked. "Sure I will!" said Porcupine. So the three friends set off. Then they saw The Ssssnake Brothersss. "Yo dude, they said. "Yo!". The friends said, "Want to come to the pond?" asked the friends. "Dude, let the brothersss said. So, the friends set off."
All of Tirtwig's friends were there at the pond; they all saw Tadpole. "That's everyone!" Tirtwig said. Tirtwig asked all of his friends if they would live nearby. "Yes!" They all said. And, they all lived happily ever after. And that's when they saw a new neighbor, Turkey.
